WALALA VINEYARD

Sonoma Coast Pinot Noir

Perched high in the northwestern Sonoma Coast, six miles from the rugged Pacific Ocean coastline, Walala is the most isolated of our estate vineyards. This property is surrounded by 19,000 acres of redwoods and named for the Kashaya Pomo Indian saying, “where the water flows down,” a reference to the local Gualala River and Gualala. Pinot noir thrives here, in the salty sea breezes that cool the grapes and allow for extended ripening time. This years bottling is comprised of everything we love about coastal influences on pinot noir – beginning with notes of fresh cranberry and wild lilies, before culminating in a hearty finish of rum fruitcake, allspice, and toasty oak: a trip to the Sonoma Coast in a glass.

We believe in stewardship of the land, the vineyards, and the people. We are for real connections, real history, real wines; experiences you will never forget. We welcome you to our home, the Adobe, for an historic tasting in Sonoma.
