ONE SKY VINEYARD
SONOMA MOUNTAIN

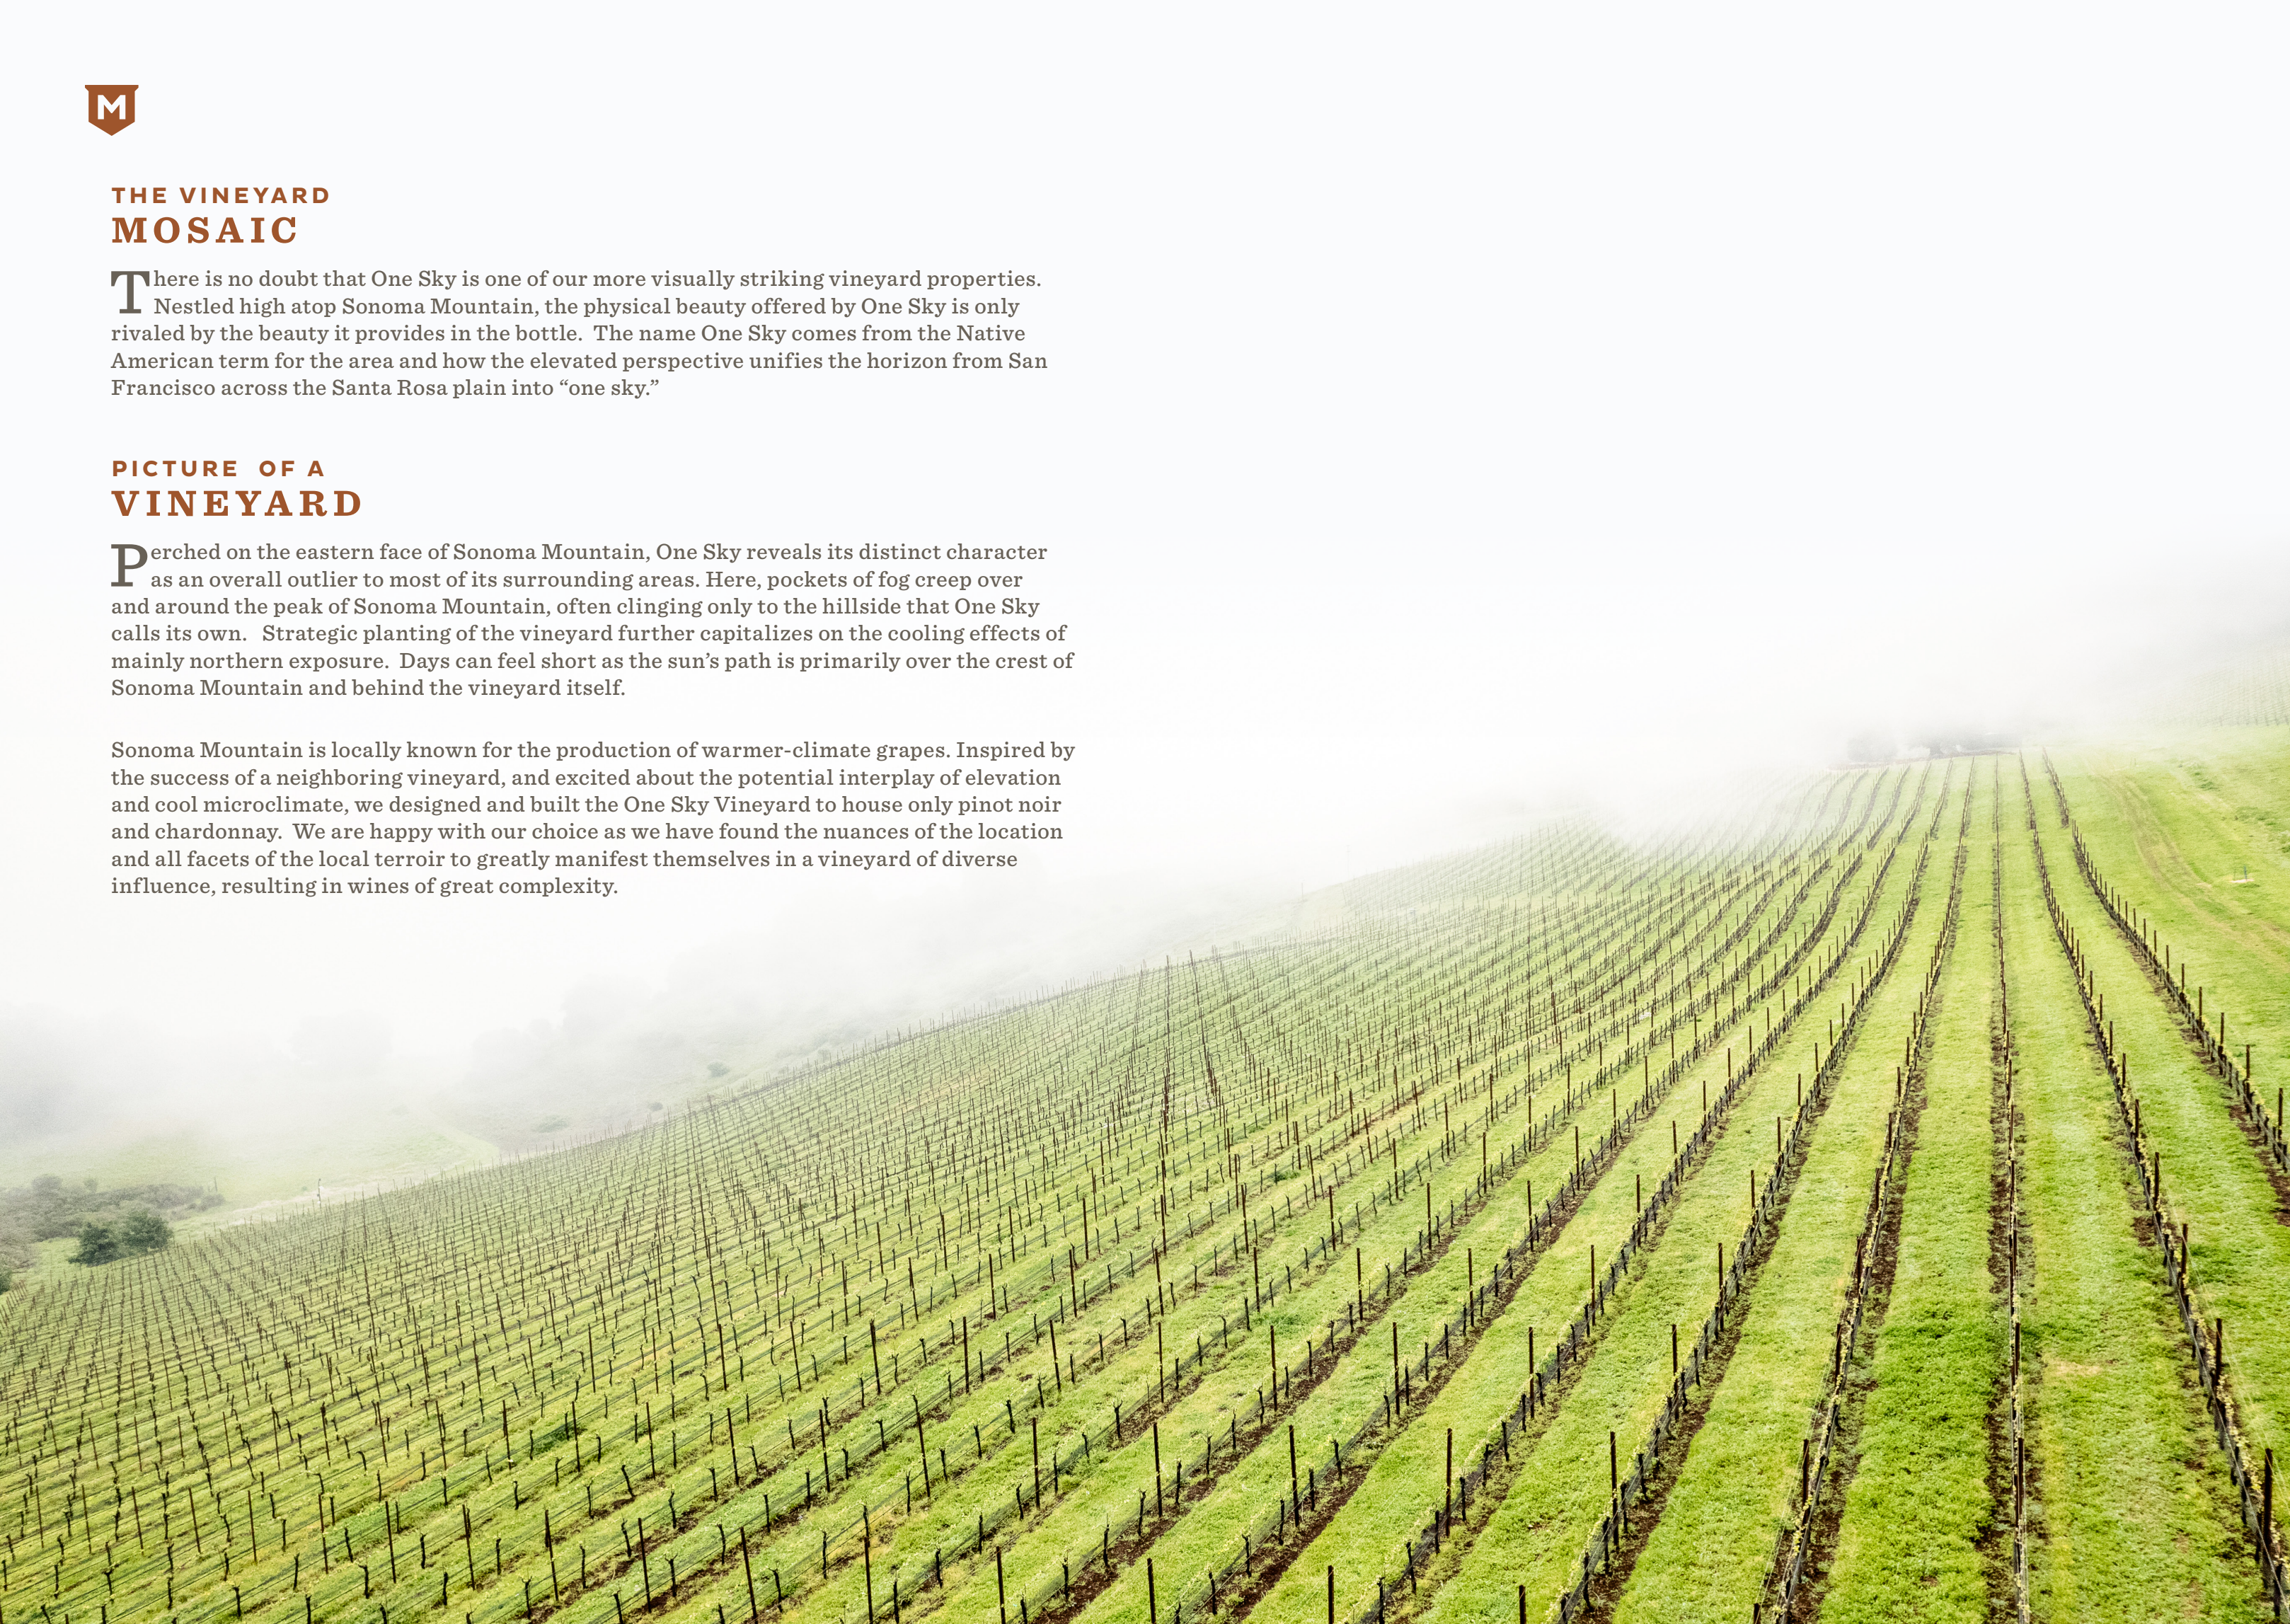

THE VINEYARD MOSAIC

There is no doubt that One Sky is one of our more visually striking vineyard properties. Nestled high atop Sonoma Mountain, the physical beauty offered by One Sky is only rivaled by the beauty it provides in the bottle. The name One Sky comes from the Native American term for the area and how the elevated perspective unifies the horizon from San Francisco across the Santa Rosa plain into “one sky.”

PICTURE OF A VINEYARD

Perched on the eastern face of Sonoma Mountain, One Sky reveals its distinct character as an overall outlier to most of its surrounding areas. Here, pockets of fog creep over and around the peak of Sonoma Mountain, often clinging only to the hillside that One Sky calls its own. Strategic planting of the vineyard further capitalizes on the cooling effects of mainly northern exposure. Days can feel short as the sun’s path is primarily over the crest of Sonoma Mountain and behind the vineyard itself.

Sonoma Mountain is locally known for the production of warmer-climate grapes. Inspired by the success of a neighboring vineyard, and excited about the potential interplay of elevation and cool microclimate, we designed and built the One Sky Vineyard to house only pinot noir and chardonnay. We are happy with our choice as we have found the nuances of the location and all facets of the local terroir to greatly manifest themselves in a vineyard of diverse influence, resulting in wines of great complexity.

GROWTH IN TIME

The One Sky Vineyard was mainly a natural hillside until we designed and built our largest Monopole Vineyard on the site. Untouched by extensive cultivation or grazing, the site was less a canvas for our design as it was a time-honored, pre-determined location of natural influence begging for a purpose and focused use. As we obliged, our design and development of the vineyard took painstaking care to fit the vineyard and our practices to the land itself, and not lose touch or focus with the wild natural history of the location.

The vineyard retains its wild nature, both within the boundaries of the vines and in its Sonoma Mountain backdrop. Diverse flora and fauna are both ever-present and active parts of the immediate landscape at One Sky. Impressive mountain lions, lush pervasive ferns, frightening rattlesnakes, and delicious truffles and mushrooms are all very much alive and well as part of the One Sky ecosystem. We take a tremendous amount of pride that our use of the land has not diminished these natural elements of the environs. In fact, it has been very intentional to retain, preserve, and promote this untamed spirit as an essential part of the vineyard and a unique character in the wines from One Sky.

DISTINGUISHED APPELLATION

The Sonoma Mountain AVA, established in 1985, is a unique and distinguished wine region showcasing the remarkable influence of topography. Stretching across the peak and slopes of the namesake mountain, this AVA sets itself apart for its specific criterium of elevation, not just location. Steep elevation changes of more than 800' also create meaningful microclimates that help define the independent terroir of the Sonoma Mountain AVA.

The gentle western slopes are dominated by cool maritime influences of fog and wind that come from the nearby Petaluma Gap. Just over the peak, the eastern face is more influenced by steep, rugged terrain, and protection provided by a prevailing northern exposure mediates the warming influences of the valley below. A dense canopy of varied species of oaks and other trees are hallmarks of the area, often surrounding and dwarfing the vineyards of the Sonoma Mountain AVA.

Covering approximately 800 vineyard acres, the Sonoma Mountain AVA has long showcased the success of many grape varieties. Plantings of cabernet sauvignon, sauvignon blanc, and syrah flourish side-by-side with others of chardonnay and pinot noir. Sonoma Mountain boasts an interplay of topography and microclimate that offers a range of growing conditions. As such, the Sonoma Mountain AVA is known for both its quality and its diversity.

The soil at One Sky Vineyard is remarkable and showcases a range of characteristics, each playing a vital role in shaping the flavors and textures of our wines. The Goulding cobbly clay loam, distinguished by its reddish hue and medium-fine texture, has excellent drainage properties and ensures the roots dive deep into the earth for nourishment. The volcanic origins of this soil provide a wealth of essential minerals which contribute to the fertility and vitality of our vineyard.

Rich in iron and housing a natural balance of major nutrients, the soils of One Sky offer a natural substrate for strong, healthy vines. Rocks, some the size of cars, are also part of the native strata. This soil composition allows the vines at One Sky to thrive on their own accord and self-regulate their size and composition. This has been a key element in grapevine development and is mirrored closely in the balance and structure of the resulting wines.

CONSCIENCE COMMITMENT

One Sky Vineyard, like all vineyard properties of Price Family Vineyards and Estates, continue to uphold the commitment to sustainable and organic farming practices. It proudly maintains its certification from the California Sustainable Winegrowing Alliance, signifying its dedication to environmentally conscious viticulture. Additionally, the vineyard holds the esteemed Fish Friendly Farming certification, reflecting its efforts to preserve waterways and aquatic habitats.

Sustainability in viticulture revolves around minimizing environmental impacts while ensuring the long-term viability of the vineyard. Embodying this ethos, Rob Harris, the caretaker of the vineyards, emphasizes the importance of working in harmony with the land rather than against it. His holistic approach encompasses not only the well-being of the vineyard itself but also the individuals involved and the resulting wines.

By embracing organic farming practices and considering the interconnectedness of the environment, the workers, and the final product, the Monopole vineyards nurture healthier soil and robust plants. This holistic approach ultimately yields grapes of exceptional quality, which in turn leads to the creation of even more remarkable wines. Each vineyard remains a beacon of sustainable and mindful viticulture, dedicated to producing wines that exemplify the harmony between nature and craftsmanship.

CHARDONNAY

The One Sky Chardonnay vines are the highest vines planted in the Sonoma Mountain AVA at around 1400 ft in elevation. At this higher elevation, the daytime temperatures stay lower throughout the day, leaving this fruit ample hang time to develop nuanced and expressive flavors. Couple that with a Wente clonal selection, and you get fruit that has wonderful density and broad mouthfeel while still retaining the vibrant acidity to make Chardonnay shine.

PINOT NOIR

The One Sky Pinot Noir vines sit at 1300 feet in elevation, some of the highest vines in the Sonoma Mountain AVA. At this elevation, the winds move freely through the vines, and daytime temps stay cool. The Pinot Noir that comes off this vineyard makes wines that express both pretty red fruit and some more spice and earthy components. These wines can be both elegant and contain dense fruit notes, making wines of immense complexity.

ROOTS OF TRADITION HERITAGE VINEYARDS

The Durell, Gap's Crown, and Walala Vineyards comprise what we call our Heritage Vineyards. We recognize and celebrate the history and legacy of these renowned vineyards even prior to our ownership of them. But, as their current stewards, we take very seriously our responsibility to create and protect their future. We do so with obsessive attention to detail and meticulous care in farming them. These Heritage Vineyards are, and forever will be, cornerstones of our fine chardonnay and pinot noir production. Three Sticks, among a select group of other producers, will create and share wines from these iconic vineyards for many years to come.
